

THE END.

OTTAWA, June 9.

Sir John Macdonald died on Saturday night at 10:15, after lying speechless and partly unconscious for eight days, during which time death was expected by the doctors almost every hour; but the premier's wonderful vitality surprised the medical attendants. Death came slowly and without pain, while surrounded by family and friends. As soon as death occurred the news was wired all over the world, and the bells in every city, town and village in Canada were tolled. Sunday was a day of national mourning. Flags floated at half mast from thousands of flag staffs, and from hundreds of pulpits were delivered eloquent eulogies on the dead statesman. In the United States and Britain he was acknowledged to be one of the foremost men of the time, and the Confederation and the Canadian Pacific railway were pointed to as standing monuments to his memory. Thousands of messages of sympathy and condolence are pouring into Earncliffe from every part of the world, Queen Victoria's and Lord Salisbury's being amongst them. The Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise cabled to place a floral wreath upon the bier for them. Sir John's remains will be embalmed and the undertaker says that his features will be preserved 50 years hence. He looks natural in death and lies attired in the uniform of the imperial privy council. The burial casket is made of chilled steel. Hamilton McCarthy, the Toronto sculptor, has made a mask of the premier's face, from which a statue will be made. The body of the dead premier will be moved to the parliament buildings on Tuesday; there it will lie in state until Wednesday at noon, when the state funeral will take place to St. Alban's church, Ottawa. The remains will then be taken to Kingston and will lie in state in the city hall until Thursday at noon, when Sir John will be buried beside his parents. Prominent men are coming from all directions to attend the funeral, which no doubt will be the largest and most impressive ever seen in Canada. The house has adjourned until Tuesday of next week. Langevin, Laurier and Davin pronounced eulogies on Sir John's life. The senate and supreme court also adjourned until next week.

OTTAWA, June 11.

Private services were held at Earncliffe on Monday night and early on Tuesday morning Sir John's body was removed to the senate chamber, where it lay in state and was viewed by fully twenty thousand sorrowing friends and admirers of the dead statesman. Hundreds of floral tributes were laid on the casket. On Wednesday at noon the funeral procession was formed. In it were included the governor-general and representative men of all classes, creeds, professions and callings in Eastern Canada, and Messrs. Brett and Betts from the Northwest advisory board. The cortege proceeded to St. Alban's where Church of England services were conducted by Rev. J. J. Bogart and several assistants. The remains were then taken to the Canadian Pacific railway station for conveyance to Kingston for burial. The funeral was the largest and most impressive ever seen in Canada. The cortege contained 8,000 people and fully 50,000 crowded the streets.

The train bearing the remains of Sir John to Kingston arrived at ten o'clock on Wednesday night and was met at the station by a great throng of people. The remains were conveyed to the city hall where they lay in state until noon on Thursday when the interment will take place in Cataraqui cemetery. Memorial services in honor of Sir John were held in many cities of Canada, including Winnipeg and Victoria, B. C., also in Westminster Abbey, England. Lord Salisbury delivered an eloquent eulogy in the British House of Lords.

KINGSTON, June 11.

From the time of the arrival of Sir John's remains until two o'clock on Thursday a stream of humanity passed by taking a farewell look at the dead premier. At noon the funeral cortege formed and started on its long mournful march to Cataraqui cemetery, where Sir John was laid in his last resting place beside his parents. The services at the grave were in accordance with the ritual of the Church of England, Rev. Dr. Bedford Jones officiating. The funeral ceremonies were almost as solemn and imposing as at Ottawa on Wednesday. Fully 30,000 people filled the streets. Lieutenant-governor Royal, police commissioner Horchauer, Indian commissioner Hayter Reed and Supt. Gagnon arrived from Regina in time to take places in the cortege. A feature of the funeral was the attendance of delegates from the Mohawk Indians, Bay of Quinte, and from the Six Nations tribes Tuscorara and Oneida.

WINNIPEG, June 5.

Supplementary estimates for over $2,500,000 have been submitted.

Edgar's bill to repeal the franchise act was given the six months hoist by a vote of 100 to 77.

Senator Girard will moved for a committee to enquire into the resources of the Mackenzie river basin.

Davin has given notice of a bill empowering settlers who located between June 1883 and June 1886 to take second homesteads; and another to compel railway companies to make fire breaks.

In the commons on Thursday Charlton's Sabbath observance bill was read a second time and referred to a select committee who will enquire how it affects the provincial and municipal law, and commerce of the country.

Rev. Mr. Moody, agent of the Dominion alliance, was jeered, reviled, pelted with eggs, knocked down and kicked by a mob of hotel keepers at Portage la Prairie on Tuesday. Rev. Mr. Ruttan, an aged Methodist minister, who tried to protect Moody, fared similarly. Moody had several hotel keepers prosecuted for violation of the law. He had been on a similar mission throughout the province and is known to have informations against several Winnipeg hotel keepers. There is much excitement. The mob leaders will be prosecuted.

WINNIPEG, June 6.

Laurier's resolution censuring Sir Charles Tupper was defeated by one hundred to seventy-nine.

The fiercest fight of the Chilian war occurred in Valparaiso harbor on April 28th. An insurgent cruiser and two government torpedo boats were wrecked. Fifty men were killed on each side.

Michael Conolley, of Larkin, Conolley & Co. refused to produce the books of the firm in the Tarte-McGreevey examination and was ordered to appear at the bar of the house of Commons on Monday.

WINNIPEG, June 9.

Forty houses at Blake lake, near Sherbrooke, Quebec, were burned by bush fires on Sunday. Two hundred and fifty families were rendered homeless. The loss is very heavy. Bush fires are raging in the Lake St. John, Chicoutimi and Lower St. Lawrence regions, also in the vicinity of Mequik and along the Laurentide railway.

In the baccaret case in London, England, yesterday, Sir Edward Clark caused a sensation by stating in answer to Sir Chas Russell's statement that Sir William Gordon Cumming's name should be struck off the army list, that it would be impossible for the authorities to accomplish this and leave on the name of the Prince of Wales.

The governor general has not yet asked any member to form a government and it is not expected that he will do so until after the funeral. The friends of Tupper and Thompson are working hard for the premiership, but Abbott may be selected as a compromise. Dalton McCarthy and Sir John Thompson had a long consultation yesterday. La Minerve of Montreal is trying to boom Langevin, and says it is useless to disguise the fact that there are serious difficulties in the way of forming a government.

WINNIPEG, June 11.

The latest news from Ottawa is to the effect that Abbott will become premier temporarily and that Kirkpatrick will also be taken into the government. The reconstruction will take place during recess. It seems that the breach between Thompson and McCarthy can not be healed, and therefore Thompson's chances for the premiership are not so good as they were. McCarthy, however, has dropped the Northwest bill and starts for England next week. This leads some people to think that Tupper will eventually become leader and be joined by McCarthy.

WINNIPEG, June 12.

The London Times and Canadian Gazette suggest Abbott for premier. Chapleau says that Thompson is the only man capable of holding the party together.

Forest fires have desolated over one hundred miles of country in northern New Brunswick. The Lake St. John district of Quebec is also burned out and millions of dollars of damage done.

William Pattenden, aged 17 killed Annie Rodway at James Ladgell's farm, Woodlands, on Wednesday. The murderer was captured, and confessed. He was committed for trial.

The governor-general and Sir John Thompson had a two hours conference yesterday morning from which fact it was at once concluded that Thompson had been called upon to form a government; but the announcement was premature. In the afternoon Thompson, Abbott and Lord Stanley had a half hour conference. As a result the official announcement of the premiership will be made to-day. It is believed that Thompson will be called upon to form a ministry.

SIR JOHN.

The death of Sir John A. Macdonald on the night of Saturday, June 6th was more than an event, it was the close of an era in Canadian history. To say that he was a most wonderful man and one of the greatest statesmen of the age does not describe the position which he held in the politics of this country or his influence over its affairs. A man of mark from the day on which he entered public life, without underrating his abilities displayed or services rendered before confederation, it may be said that only since that event has the political field been wide enough for the full display of those great abilities of leadership and statesmanship which have made his career since then an almost unbroken succession of triumphs. The annexation of the Northwest, the union with British Columbia and Prince Edward Island, the reversal of the former free trade policy of the country in favor of protection, the building of the C. P. R. and the finally assured success of that enterprise were all achievements for which Sir John must be accorded the fullest credit. Just now we can see perhaps too clearly how this or that might have been better done, or perhaps still better left undone, or we see the sometimes ignoble means employed to achieve great ends, but in the future the results will stand out singly and grandly as achievements of the highest statesmanship while means and motives will all be forgotten.

Thousands or even millions of Canadians heard of the death of Sir John with a sense of personal loss, deeper than mere political regard, and all will agree that the death of such a brilliant genius is a withdrawal of so much of the nation's capital of wisdom, energy and patriotism and therefore to be universally deplored. But as far as the great man himself was concerned there was nothing to regret. He had passed the three score years and ten named in the allotted age of man in the full possession of his mental faculties and the enjoyment of the best of physical health; he had achieved and held until the holding had become a burden the highest post in the country's service; he held in a peculiar degree the respect of all and the individual confidence and even love of a majority of his fellow countrymen without distinction of race, creed or locality; he had seen his plans of statesmanship succeed to the limit of desire; he had just led his party through a successful political campaign which success was an expression of faith in himself personally rather than in his party or his policy; and as a further manifestation of this faith in and love towards himself he had seen his only son returned to parliament for one of the most important constituencies in the country. Death can never be welcome to a sane man—to a man having work to do and wishing to do it—but to drop while at work, to live only long enough to know in how great regard he was held, how highly his life was valued and yet to be saved from the care and worry of settling up political affairs,—to halt, to hear good-bye said, to pass out—such a death would seem to be the most desirable ending to such a life.

On almost every public question there is room for honest difference of opinion and in a free country it is the privilege of the poorest and meanest citizen to hold and express his opinions though they question the wisdom of the wisest in the land. By this means all sides of every matter may be brought forward and the ultimate object of government—the greatest good to the greatest number, may be best attained. In the exercise of this privilege or rather right it has been the lot of many honest and patriotic men to hold views adverse to the policy pursued from time to time by Sir John; the secret of whose success it appeared they lay in his supreme insight into the minds and motives of men, together with his boundless amiability and adaptability, and not less in the ambition which spurred him to exertion and the foresight and cool judgement which gave that ambition practical direction and kept it within practicable bounds. To them it appeared that with Sir John power was not rather than a means and that the unlimited confidence reposed in him especially in late years by the majority of the people, while a fitting acknowledgment of good service, tended to place the interest of the community below the aggrandizement of the individual and kept in abeyance on the grounds of political expediency many questions arising from the development of the country whose settlement was necessary to its welfare. These questions will now press for settlement and with new men—and almost necessarily less able men—assuming the responsibility so recently laid down, there is no doubt that many persons on all sides of politics look upon the present situation with grave misgivings, and wish Sir John were at the helm once more. But when the political course of the country during the past 24 years is considered, with the difficulties that have been encountered and overcome or avoided, and when it is remembered that its growth although gradual has been healthful to the last degree, that at no time in its history was the population as great, intelligence and education as widely diffused, its business institutions on so solid a basis, the patriotism of its people more thoroughly to be relied on, it will be seen that although as great abilities may not be available in Canada's next political leader, as varied talents will not be as necessary as in the days of Sir John. His work was to keep the diverse and scattered elements of the country in touch with each other by any means until they had begun to grow together. That work he did and it now remains for his successors to develop the growth and greatness which under his auspices were so well begun.

FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs. Jas. H. Kelly which took place on Monday forenoon to the Edmonton cemetery was largely attended. Rev. D. G. McQueen held the funeral service in the dwelling before the procession started for the cemetery, and read the burial service at the grave. The deceased returned from a trip to her old home in Ontario about two months ago and being in delicate health at the time the effects of the fatigue then endured caused her untimely death. She leaves three small children to mourn her loss.

THE RAILWAY.

On Monday last the rails were laid and goods were being delivered at the 16th siding a short distance this side of Battle river, where the second station north of Red Deer will be placed. Tracklaying was delayed at that point for a day or two, having caught up to Carlin and Lake's outfit. The grade was nearly finished to Peace hills and would be completed within the week. Graders strung out along the line this side of Peace Hills to two miles this side of Telford's stopping place, or within eighteen miles of Edmonton. Work was in full swing on the Boggy plain and was not turning out as difficult as was expected, as the ground was dry. Within two weeks more it is expected that the graders will be at work all the way in to Edmonton.

BASE BALL MATCH.

The base ball match played on Tuesday afternoon, Patton vs. Pattison resulted in a victory for Patton's nine by a score of 40 to 25. The game was for a supper which was partaken of in the evening at Lauder's. A. H. Anthony acted as umpire and W. B. Stennett as scorer. The following is the score and position of the players:

It is said that more miners are at work on the river this season than ever before.

J. V. KILBAND, advocate, is erecting an office and residence on the lots immediately west of the post office, which he purchased from A. D. Osborne last week for $8500. The building is frame 18x24. Jas. McDonald contractor. Estimated cost $1,500.

The Dominion Illustrated for May 30th has a view of Illiacant Canyon, B. C. Block house at Windsor, Nova Scotia. Scenes on the Yukon river. Trivet memorial church at Exeter, Ontario. Sir William Whiteaway, premier of Newfoundland and A. B. Morris, leader of the opposition in the Newfoundland legislature.

Avalanche has been made to fishery inspector Johnstone, Edmonton, for a fishing license at Pigeon lake by a Mr. Loggie, who proposes to establish a permanent fishing business there. Pigeon lake is about 20 miles west of the O. & E. line at Peace hills and is noted for the abundance of white fish which it contains.

DAN MACKEY, who is engaged in burning lime at a point about six miles up the river says that a great deal of the porous white limestone picked up along the river beach in boulder form is saturated with natural coal tar supposed to be petroleum tar. The same was noticed in limestone burned at the Miner's flat just west of Edmonton. There is no indication as to where the limestone came from.

Chief engineer Nelson of the O. & E. left for the south on Monday, accompanied by his assistant Mr. Clark, after completing the survey of the railway line to the brink of the high bank of the river on F. H. Sack's claim some distance east of his home. Mr. Nelson expects to return in ten days, when no doubt the vexed question of the terminus will be finally settled as far as the construction company is concerned.

DURING the thunder storm of Wednesday, Angus McKinnon employed in Climie's camp at Peace Hills sought shelter from the hail in a bunch of willows. He was struck by lightning and instantly killed, his companion being badly stunned. McKinnon came from Qu'Appelle this spring to mine on the river and only went to work two weeks ago at the grading camp. The storm was much more severe at Peace Hills than in Edmonton, the hail having covered the ground. Dr. Wilson, coroner, left for the scene Thursday morning.

A MEETING to consider the celebration of Dominion Day was held in Fielder's hall on Tuesday evening and was largely attended. A. D. Osborne chairman, A. E. Johnstone secretary. It was decided to offer upwards of $1,000 in prizes, and a list of events was agreed upon very similar to last year's. A committee of management was elected. Dr. Wilson president, H. S. Young vice-president, John Looby treasurer, A. E. Johnstone and Geo. Thompson assistant secretary. Committee on horse races and on games and sports were appointed. Also collectors.

Ten Dakota delegates mentioned last week as desirous of coming to Edmonton from the end of the track did not come further north than Red Deer. They were seen in Calgary by W. G. Ibbotson, who would have brought them on had they wished to come but they had fallen into the hands of agents of the C. & E. railway company who are specially interested in booming the district around Poplar Grove, the centre of the land grant of that company, and there they were finally induced to select their location. The delegates seemed to be of a very desirable class.

Serious frosts occurred in the vicinity of Montreal on May 27th. In the city the thermometer stood at 32 degrees, but in the surrounding districts it went down to 10 degrees. Fruit trees suffered severely, and there was considerable damage to gardens. A quantity of ice formed in the St. Lawrence river opposite Montreal.

The Calgary people want the C. P. R. to build a stone station there. The C. P. R. will accommodate if the people of Calgary will put up the difference between a frame and stone building.

The Ottawa Citizen attacks Davin for his second homeostet resolution and accuses him of playing into the hands of the liberals.
